Grading Student Writing
1:30-3:00pm

This workshop, offered in concurrent sessions for graduate students in either humanities/social sciences or sciences/engineering, will focus on concrete strategies for bringing increased objectivity and consistency to grading student writing—without using quotas or curves. Participants will also learn about quick, effective ways to guide their students through the writing process and elicit... minutes), a film that asks us to reconsider the purpose of education, putting personal growth over test scores, inquiry over mimicry, and passion over rankings. In this documentary film, a follow-up to Race to Nowhere, director Vicki Abeles travels to public schools across the country as they aim to create a more equitable, empowering, student-centered education culture from the ground up. By putting research and innovative models into practice, groundbreaking school communities are transforming how and what they teach.

Sexual Misconduct | Providing Support to Students and Understanding Your Reporting Obligations
1:30-2:30pm, 206 Frist
Regan Crotty, Title IX Administrator

Imagine that one of your students requests an extension because they were involved in a “SHARE-related incident.” Or imagine that a student tells you that they can no longer attend your precept because they were assaulted by another member of the precept. How would you handle these situations? Join Regan Crotty, the University’s Title IX Administrator, to learn more about how to support students who are dealing with these types of difficult situations, as well as your reporting obligations as an AI.

Please RSVP by February 1.

GradSpeak | Public Speaking Workshop

Tuesday, February 13
12:00 - 1:30 pm
Dillon Court East, Room E08 | Princeton Writes

Over 100 graduate students have honed their public speaking skills through GradSpeak! GradSpeak is a workshop offered monthly to enhance graduate student’s public speaking skills where practice is encouraged and feedback is given in a constructive supportive environment. Each session will have a topic to practice (for example: your research in a nutshell) and focus on technical skill such as diction or eye contact with the audience. Come to one session or as many sessions as you are able to attend.

All Spring 2018 sessions:
Tuesday, February 13 | Noon-1:30 p.m. | Dillon Court East
Tuesday, March 13 | Noon-1:30 p.m. | Dillon Court East
Tuesday, April 10 | Noon-1:30 p.m. | Dillon Court East
Tuesday, May 8 | Noon-1:30 p.m. | Dillon Court East

Space is limited to 10 graduate students. Please RSVP here.

Co-sponsored by The Graduate School, and PrincetonWrites.

The McGraw Center Is Hiring | Graduate Student Fellow for STEM Undergraduate Learning Support

Do you want to share with Princeton STEM undergraduates the expertise you've developed around effective and efficient learning, problem-solving, and research?

The McGraw Center’s Undergraduate Learning Program is seeking to fill a Graduate Student Fellow position to support undergraduate STEM students (with a particular emphasis on engineering students) in their coursework and independent research. The Fellow will develop content and deliver programming that enhances students’ learning and problem-solving skills and strategies in STEM disciplines.

The STEM Fellow position is funded as an AI3 (equivalent to a course preceptor). Work hours are very flexible. To learn more, please contact Nic Voge here.

ComSciCon 2018| Communicating Science Workshop

ComSciCon 2018, the 6th annual Communicating Science workshop, will be held at Emerson College in Boston, MA on June 14-16, 2018. Graduate students at U.S. and Canadian institutions in all fields of science, technology, engineering, health, mathematics, and related fields are encouraged to apply. The application will close on March 1st. Acceptance to the workshop is competitive; attendance is free and travel support and lodging will be provided to accepted applicants.

Participants will build the communication skills that scientists and other technical professionals need to express complex ideas to the general public, experts in other fields, and their peers. In addition to panel discussions (on topics such as Creative Storytelling, Science Journalism, Diversity/Inclusivity, and a Case Study on Scicomm in Medicine), ample time is allotted for networking with science communication experts and developing science outreach collaborations with fellow graduate students.

Apply Here.

Questions or concerns, please email comscicon18@comscicon.org. In addition, Christin Monroe, Ph.D. candidate in Chemistry, attended this workshop and is happy to speak with any grad student interested in applying. She can be reached here.
Reminder: please note the consolidation of our online search services.

Princeton University Library will be consolidating online search services at the end of the fall semester. Effective January 29, 2018, the 20-year-old “Main Catalog” will be retired, and we will offer a single Catalog (formerly known as the “New Catalog”). If you have any questions or would like search assistance, please contact us or find our site here.

Princeton Research Day | Application Now Open

Thursday, May 10, 2018
Frist Campus Center

Princeton Research Day is a celebration of the research and creative endeavors by our undergraduates, graduate students, postdoctoral researchers and fellows, and other early career researchers. The third-annual campus-wide event will feature poster presentations, exhibits, performances, selected talks and an award ceremony for outstanding contributions. The all-day event is free and open to the public. We encourage all academic departments and centers at Princeton to reserve May 10, 2018, for this special event, and to support participation by your undergraduates, graduate students, postdoctoral researchers and fellows, and other early career researchers.

Dates to remember:
Feb. 16: Priority application deadline
April 2: Presenters informed of presentation format
May 10: Princeton Research Day

Princeton Research Day is a collaborative initiative between the offices of the Dean of the College, the Dean of the Faculty, the Dean for Research and the Dean of the Graduate School.

Part of The Graduate School’s mission is to ensure that our graduate students have the skills they need to succeed professionally as well as academically. Our office and campus partners provide a full range of professional development opportunities and resources for graduate students. We hope you will take full advantage of all the Princeton graduate education has to offer.
